

Giving Back. Moving Forward.

Potential Grantee Interview

Required for most Environment & Land Use and Youth proposals

Applicants may be required to meet with the committee that will be reviewing their grant application following the application deadline. The interviews are brief and consist of a short presentation about the grant request, emphasizing the importance of the grant and providing clarification in the first few minutes, followed by time for the committee to ask questions.

It is advised that the applying organization sends a representative that can best speak about the proposal and clarify anything that might need clarification. These interviews are limited in time, (10-15 minutes,) so applicants must arrive a few minutes early and limit their conversation to the time allotted.

Staff will be in touch with the main point of contact on the application to arrange the interview. The interviews will likely take place virtually.